

Toll-Free Goodwill Successful

Contributions of discarded clothing, furniture and other items have increased considerably from this area since the installation of the new toll-free telephone number, announced Robert E. Watkins, Executive Director of Goodwill Industries.

Residents are again reminded that they can now summon a Goodwill truck to pick-up their discarded items by dialing toll-free Zenith 5131.

Goodwill Industries is especially in need of furniture at the present time to keep all of their disabled employees on the job.

PERRY L. CONNETT
... versatile

The line the real estate profession has out—in Torrance, anyway—must be baited with a silver hook because we have caught an industrial engineer and high school teacher! Perry L. Connett taught high school in Nebraska, Missouri and Tennessee before Proctor and Gamble persuaded him to become an industrial engineer at their Wolf Creek Ordnance Plant in Tennessee. Perry was amply qualified for both these positions, having earned his B.S. degree from Northeastern Teachers' College, Missouri, and his M.A. degree in Industrial Arts from the University of Missouri. When the war was over and the bomb-making business had slowed down, the Connetts decided to see what was happening in other parts of the United States, so Maribel and Perry packed their bags and took off, ending up in Southern California. The inevitable happened. They liked it here! And, since they had decided they would like to work for themselves for a change, the real estate business, with its silver hook dangling, made the catch! The Connetts made a most systematic and professional survey of Southern California and Torrance ended up on top of the list as the area with the most interesting potential in the field of development. The Connetts have their own office, now, at 1871 W. Carson Street, and Maribel assists in the office where she has a Salesman's license hanging on the wall. She weaves her office assistance most skillfully with a busy home schedule, including two youngsters, Dickie and Gracie.

Perry is an active and enthusiastic gun collector, belonging to the Long Beach Muzzle Loader's Club. And the wood work he has done attests his ability in this field. Along with all kinds of small jobs, the Connetts have a rumpus room to prove their husband and father can really use his extensive wood-working equipment.

The treasury of the Torrance-Lomita Realty Board has prospered under Perry's vigilance during the past five years. He is also a Realtor, being a member of the National, State and, of course, the local Realty Board.

Human hope and faith should join in nature's grand harmony, and, if on minor key, make music in the heart. —Mary Baker Eddy
